

1/2/08 Ann-Marie Saccurato Honored as one of the BEST of 2007!

The Women's Boxing Archive Network recently listed their yearly BEST and WORST female boxers of 2007! Ann-Marie Saccurato was honored, not once, but 4 times being mention as the BEST in several categories.

Team Saccurato and Ann feel very blessed that fans are recognizing her hard work, her courage at taking risks, and her determination on trying to raise the skill level, marketability, respect and salaries in women's boxing.

-----From the wban.com website-----

The Best and the Worst of 2007!

Another year has gone by and it is time to have the "hot" picks and "not" picks for the year 2007! There were definitely the GOOD, the BAD, and the NOT so good this year in women's boxing! WBAN ran a survey for BOXING FANS to give them an opportunity to submit their picks!

WBAN "Top Honors" of the Year

Ann Marie Saccurato

It was astounding to see through the voting from boxing fans this year, the notice that Ann Marie Saccurato, of Plains, New York, has received through her pure no-nonsense ferocity that she displayed in 2007. She took on some very tough fights, not in her hometown-but others hometowns. Saccurato did not play it safe---she went to Japan, and fought Emiko Raika; she went to New Mexico and fought Holly Holm--and she last fought in Lemoore, CA, and KO'd Jessica Rakoczy in the 10th round for the WBC lightweight title. If this sport had more "Saccuratos" in it---there would be no stopping the sport moving up to another level.

Biggest KO of the Year

Ann Marie Saccurato

vs. Jessica Rakoczy

On September 27, 2007, at the Tachi Casino, in Lemoore, California, Ann Marie Saccurato, became the new WBC Lightweight world champion when she stopped Jessica Rakoczy, 134, Las Vegas, Nevada, 1:58 seconds of the 10th round.

Top Fights of the Year

Ann Marie Saccurato vs. Jessica Rakoczy

September 27, 2007

The "Road Warriors" of 2007

Ann Marie Saccurato

